

Sold to the Boss $100,000 Is an Offer My Husband Can't Refuse (Sold to the Billionaire Book 1) By Loren Teese Who could refuse those one hundred thousand dollars in my situation especially if it means spending an entire weekend at disposal of a rich young handsome man and maybe saving my marriage with it? ~10400 words Sold to the Boss $100,000 Is an Offer My Husband Can't Refuse (Sold to the Billionaire Book 1) Quite detailed set up for a continued story first part deals with older secretary getting turned on knowing that her boss's son is getting hard watching her around the office giving her thoughts of trying out a new man reality hits when the son wrangles in with her husband who has hotwife fantasies and wants them to come true and winds up selling his wife for a weekend! The description of her outfit and what happens upon arrival at the son's home is great and after the breaking in of her holes stops for part two! which I'm hoping is just as good! English Glad it was a short story won't continue to read any further sequels. I've been resisting Mark's advances for weeks and I was almost going to give up: After all his eyes always on me and his hands occasionally caressing my thighs turned me on than I thought I can't negate it, But I strived to be a faithful wife as I've always been. I would have never expected my boss to directly contact my husband though nor that Larry would actually agree on a price for me: But even if I feel used since my husband has lost his job our financial issues undermined our relationship. Pure sexual harassment and then instead of treating something he has bought with care he treats it like trash. Shoot him in the knee cap English This short story has me shaking my head what the f%^* was I thinking when I got this book: The beginning ok it's not that bad but then it flipped [1]

My husband Larry has sold me to my boss. Now I'm torn between anger and excitement. Just not enough to hold my interest. English What a dick. It got vulgar disrespectful and then I got angry. English

